- Northfield (Atlantic County)

NJ State-approved Private School Programs

ADMISSIONS

Students who attend Y.A.L.E. School are eligible under federal law for special education and related services. The decision to send a particular student to Y.A.L.E. School is made by the child's Individualized Education Program (IEP) team. Private tours of a Y.A.L.E. campus can be scheduled with an admissions coordinator by request. In most cases, the child's local school district pays tuition and transportation costs, at no cost to the parents. Y.A.L.E. School does accept private pay in a small number of cases.

EMOTIONAL & BEHAVIORAL SUPPORT

Emotional and behavioral difficulties, specific learning and/or multiple disabilities ages 5 to 21

Students who attend may have a clinical diagnosis such as anxiety disorder, attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (A.D.H.D.), mood, personality, obsessive-compulsive, or oppositional-defiant disorders, and/or specific learning disability. Most struggle with effective relationships with peers and adults. Students 14 years of age and older receive individualized transition planning and preparation. The program's intensive school-to-work curriculum includes vocational planning and support, job skills training and mentoring, and practical on-the-job experience in the community.

“

I could not have asked for a better school to have my son succeed. I have seen a large change in Jadah since he became a student at Y.A.L.E.

I could not ask for a better team to work with Jadah at difficult times. Before attending Y.A.L.E., he didn't want to go to school, but now I can't get him to stay home. I am a proud parent of a student who attends Y.A.L.E.

Think CARING
Think INDIVIDUAL
Think Y.A.L.E. SCHOOL

At Y.A.L.E. School's emotional and behavioral support campuses, we offer hope and a culture of respect to students with emotional, behavioral, and learning disabilities, many of whom have a history of failure in other school settings. Our challenging academics are individualized to meet each student at their own level and to help them advance. Our reading specialists use multi-sensory programs based on research, so our students not only learn to read, they read to learn. We offer counseling and psychiatric services to our students and support for their families in coordination with mental health providers. Students are placed by the public school district at no cost to families. Transportation is provided by the school district at no cost to families.
